Attendees mingle during opening night of the 37th annual Mill Valley Film Festival in 2014. The festival was founded in 1977 by Mark Fishkin.

The 38th annual Mill Valley Film Festival will be held Oct. 8-18, according to Mark Fishkin, the founder of the festival and the executive director of the California Film Institute.

Zoë Elton, director of programming, also announced that the regular submission period for feature- and short-length films ends June 12. For more information on the entries, go to www.mvff.com. MVFF will also accept submissions through Without a Box, www.withoutabox.com, and Film Freeway, www.filmfreeway.com.
